

What you should do during your driving lesson. To reduce risk during the lesson, the instructor will:

- Hold up any visual aids or training resources, instead of passing them between the two of you. He may ask you to step outside the vehicle to talk.
- Ensure neither of you face each other directly when talking about scenarios; remaining face forward is the safest option when a 2-metre gap between two people cannot be maintained.
- Make sure no devices are shared such as pens with the instructor giving any brief notes digitally via text or email where possible.
- Wipe down the car's controls if and when the instructor has completed giving you a demonstration drive.

What you should do after your driving lesson

As you depart, remember not to shake hands and once you're back home, do wash your hands as soon as possible. You may also wish to wash the clothes you wore during your lesson immediately.

That all sounds pretty strict, right?

Yes, but remember – these restrictions are there to keep you and the instructor safe from harm, and they won't be in place forever.

Masks are not mandatory but if you wish to wear one or want your instructor to wear one, please ask and your instructor will do the same. Please bring your own mask with you.

Please use handsanitiser before and after each lesson. Bring your own bottle and put it in your pocket.

Please give your instructor time to sanitise the car before you approach

Please do NOT bring any unnecessary items with you as we cannot store them anymore. Make sure you put phones, wallets and purses and keys in your pockets.

Our usual 48 hour cancellation policy has been suspended for the period of Covid - 19. If you are unwell and need to cancel we will no longer charge you. This also applies to your instructor.

Please be advised that if it is cold we would need you to dress warmly as lessons will be conducted with the windows open. If it is raining or snowing, your instructor could want to cancel the lesson short notice. If it is warm please wear clothes that cover your arms and legs.

If you have allergies ie. Hayfever, please make sure you take your anti-histamins in good time to avoid confusing symptoms.

Please note: Pro-Driver Training would like to make you aware that there are inherent risks and dangers in participating in driving lessons through the Covid-19 Pandemic. Any student doing so, does this at their own risk and Pro-Driver Training will not be held liable for any illness or death due to Corona virus. All Pro Instructors will adhere to the government advised safety procedures regarding PPE and disinfecting rules mentioned above.
